DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-2, 4-9, and 11-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Ishibashi (US 5,695,188).

Claims 1, 8, 15, 16, 17, and 18. Ishibashi discloses a computerized gaming system, comprising: a gaming module, comprising a processor and gaming code which is operable when executed on the processor to conduct a wagering game on which monetary value can be wagered; and an audio module (col. 4:43-67), the audio module operable to play audio cues to direct the visual attention of a player of the gaming system, the audio cues comprising representation of the physical location of a game element presented on a video screen (col. 10:20-24) by variation in at least one of pitch, instrument, rhythm, volume, echo, phase, and location-specific sounds (Abstract).

Claims 2, 9. The computerized gaming system of claim 1, wherein localized sounds comprise sounds representing only a portion of the video screen of the gaming device (Abstract). The sounds represent the payline.

Claims 4, 11. The computerized gaming system of claim 1, wherein the audio cues indicate the payline in a video slot gaming machine (Abstract).

Claims 5, 12. The computerized gaming system of claim 1, wherein at least one of instrument or phase changes to represent different reels where the gaming system is a multi-reel video slot machine (fig. 7, Abstract).

Claims 6, 13. The computerized gaming system of claim 1, wherein the variation in at least one of pitch, instrument, rhythm, volume, echo, phase, delay, and localized sounds is further accompanied by panning to represent horizontal position on the video screen (col. 3:40-67).
Panning has been interpreted as vertical panning.

Claims 7, 14. The computerized gaming system of claim 1, wherein multiple audio cues are presented at the same time (Abstract). When the reels are rotating at the same time, the audio cues will be sounded at the same time.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 3 and 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ishibashi (US 5,695,188).

Claims 3, 10. Ishibashi substantially discloses the invention as claimed but fails to explicitly teach wherein pitch varies with vertical position of directed visual attention on the video screen. Instead, Ishibashi teaches generating sounds when each of the plurality of symbol columns is moved and stopped. However, it is well known to change the pitch of a sound with respect to its vertical position. For example in reading music, to indicate a note of a high pitch one would look at the notes at the top of the scale. Another example is the sound when a pogo stick hits the ground. Boing. One would obviously associate the high pitched sound for when the pogo stick is higher in the air. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the instant invention to incorporate wherein the pitch varies with vertical position to notify the user where to direct his attention.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
